

Vibrio cholerae strain: IDH08148

An ancient scourge of human history

Cholera, caused by contaminated water or food, leads to diarrhea and vomiting, which can result in severe dehydration and even death.

Vibrio cholerae - causative organism was isolated from the stool sample of a cholera patient.

Genomic analysis provided insights into cholera pathogenesis & antimicrobial resistance in V. cholerae strains.